A CHANCE FOR A BIG PLAY HOUSE IN ADA

Ada has an opportunity to have an elegant new $15,000 opera house building, one that would be an honor to our growing little city, and an advertisement of our prosperity and upbuilding spirits.

Messrs. Beard & Blanks, real estate men, have put a proposition up to the 25,000 Club and to the citizens of Ada, that they will erect a magnificent $15,000 play house, if the club and others will take it upon their hands to dispose of 900 tickets to the first entertainment at $5.00 each. It is planned to ask each club member to dispose of ten tickets each, either to local parties or to visitors who may be in the city, and it is thought that the number can

As a rule an opera house in a city of this size is not a paying proposition, and they are not erected by individual parties. In cities all over the country this same proposition is being met, elegant play houses erected, and why should not Ada fall in line? We deserve as good as the best are getting.

It is only asked that these tickets be taken up between now and Sept. 15. The News is of the opinion that this would be a great thing for our city. It would advertise us, it would help us in many ways, and it would afford a place of entertainment such as only a growing city of our class needs.

Will the citizens get together?

MADDENED MOB ATTEMPTS TO LYNCH GIRL'S ASSAILANT

Tulsa, I. T., May 1.—A heavily armed guard is on duty at the Tulsa jail tonight, to prevent the lynching of E. L. Brummett, a deaf mute, who says that his home is at Carl Junction, Mo., and who is charged with criminal assault. He has pleaded guilty to the crime. The complaining witness is a fourteen-year-old girl, Rose Williams, daughter of A. F. Williams of Kellyville, I. T.

Twice within the last few hours has Brummett's life been threatened by a maddened mob, whose members declare that they will not be satisfied until death has been meted out to Brummett. And it is now feared that an assault will be made on the jail in which Brummett is confined.

Brummett met the Williams girl late yesterday afternoon just outside of Kellyville. His conduct toward her was insulting and when she remonstrated, he struck her on the head with a rock, badly lacerating her skull. She was otherwise injured.

A mob was quickly formed and went in pursuit of Brummett who was reported to have been seen going along the road in the neighborhood of Bristow. There he was captured by two farmers and turned over to Deputy Marshal Freshour, who started with him to Tulsa.

Kellyville, the home of the girl, is on the route between Bristow and Tulsa. News of the fact that Brummett had been captured was telephoned to Kellyville and when the train stopped just outside that town, a mob openly declaring vengeance and avowing that they would take the prisoner from the custody of the deputy, attempted to board the train. Trainmen locked the doors and the train was quickly moved. At the Kellyville station a second mob waited the approach of the train and the engineer, pulling the throttle wide open, went through the town at full speed.

Fearing that the mob would come to Tulsa tonight, the guard at the jail was reinforced.

When arraigned in the commissioner's court today, Brummett pleaded guilty to the crime. He was committed to the grand jury without bail.

SUES BIXBY TO RECOVER VALUE OF TOWN LOTS

Muskogee, I. T., May 2.—Yesterday afternoon M. L. Mott, attorney for the Creek Nation, filed suits against Tams Bixby, commissioner to the Five Civilized Tribes, and Leo E. Bennett, United States marshal of the western district, to recover for the Creek nation the value of town lots which he alleges that they unlawfully secured when the schedule of town lots Muskogee was made. The property has become very valuable. These suits are in addition to the five recently filed by Mott against other citizens.

Separate Schools and Coaches.

I am heartily in sympathy with that mandate of the constitution which requires the legislature to provide for the negro children separate from those attended by the other children of the state.

Also, I would urge the enactment of a law popularly characterized as the "Jim Crow" law, requiring separate railroad coaches and waiting rooms for the negroes. I am an ardent advocate of the utmost constitutional legislation looking to the social segregation of the negro race in our land. From platform of Otis B. Weaver, candidate for state senator.

THE CENTURY CLUB

Met Tuesday With Mrs. Bills and Adjourned for Summer.

The Twentieth Century club held its last regular meeting of this club year with Mrs. Bills, on Tuesday.

This being the day for election of officers no lesson was prepared. Six new members signed the constitution, viz: Mesdames Brown, Sneed, Lefevre, Meaders, Rives, and Miss Gladys Terbett.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Hope; vice-president, Mrs. Stone; secretary, Mrs. Bills; treasurer, Mrs. Galbraith; parliamentarian, Mrs. Mason; reporter, Mrs. Thompson; Program committee, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. McKinley, Mrs. Stone.

Mrs. Hope has served as president before. She was elected against her own protest. Shakespeare said, "Some are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them."

After the close of the business session the "Social Hours" which was so much enjoyed, included a vocal duet by Mrs. Brown and Miss Hughes, also a vocal solo by Mrs. Rives.

A lively interest was taken in the contest of quotations from authors studied this session.

After dainty refreshments were served the club adjourned, each member regretting that the club year had passed by so quickly.

English authors will be the basis of next year's study.

The next regular meeting of the club will be on the first Tuesday in October.

If the Twenty-Five Thousand club will build an opera house they will be building Ada.

Something Needed Portland Park Addition

Lots near the big Cement Plant to accommodate the hundreds of laborers to be employed in this great industry. This need has been met by laying out the Portland Park Addition just west of the cement plant. Lots are 30 feet by 140, with 60-foot streets and 20-foot alleys. Prices of lots are from $20 to $30. Terms, $5 down and $2 per month. A large reservoir is to be built on the north side by the cement company which will afford boating and fishing.

WHAT THEY THINK OF FURMAN.

Judge Henry M. Furman, U. S. Senator to be from Oklahoma, maintains no press agents to keep his name in the newspaper lime light. He is too poor a man to employ such a service, and if he were not poor he doesn't need press agents. The newspapers know him and the people know him.

To illustrate how generally he is known and esteemed and his candidacy is supported, listen to this excerpt from a letter to an Ada citizen, an unsolicited tribute from a prominent Democrat of El Reno, Oklahoma, once a high official who has more than received a flattering endorsement from the people of his county in the form of election to high office—here is what he says of Furman: "I am a friend to the candidacy of Judge Furman and think that he is the man for the place he seeks. I believe he is one of the few men running for public office who will represent the principles embodied in the constitution recently drafted. I think that Judge Furman will outstrip all his competitors in this part of the state. In fact this sentiment seems to be almost universal."

This from an independent thinking man, one unbought and unpurchasable!

During the last few days Judge Furman has been addressing the people at various points in the Choctaw Nation. Everywhere he goes he is greeted by large crowds who listen expectantly, are gratified with his words, and enthusiastically shake his hand in indorsement of his candidacy.

The difference between Furman and many other candidates is: who Furman is, what he is, what he stands for, and what he would toil for if placed in high position, were all well-known to the masses of the people long ago, long before the present avalanche of campaign literature.

The people had faith in Furman before this campaign began. That's the reason everybody predicts his nomination by an overwhelming majority, and it's a mighty good reason.

The News would like to see a movement toward building for Ada an opera house. What do you think 25,000?

Still in the Race.

T. J. Smith of Roff wants the democracy of Pontotoc county to understand that he is still in the race for sheriff, and intends to be elected, regardless of reports to the contrary. His announcement appears in this issue. A writup of his candidacy next week.

ACID IN THE BLOOD.

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the following valuable yet simple and harmless prescription, which any one can easily prepare at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Mix by shaking in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bed time.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost.

This mixture is said to relieve almost any case of Rheumatism, which is nothing more or less than sour blood—too much acid in the system, which in damp, cool weather forms into minute crystals about the joints and muscles, causing the awful pain and misery of Rheumatism.

The above mixture is said to force the kid to purify and sweeten the blood, causing the Rheumatic pain and swelling to diminish with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach.

It is worth while giving this a trial, anyhow.

THE WAPLES-PLATTER GROCER CO.

"I don't cry any more about anything," said the bachelor girl. "When I get so sad I don't know what to do I go out and get me something to eat. A little fellow I was very fond of once taught me that. He asked me to take luncheon with him to talk over a quarrel we were having. During the talking over I got to crying. I cried all over my fish. He ordered me some more fish and scolded me while they were getting it ready. 'Never cry, Frances,' he said, 'as long as you've got a good luncheon or dinner before you. It isn't worth while. No. I never saw him again, but whenever I want to cry I think of him and get me something good to eat instead.'"

Had Use for Both.

Chicago policemen sometimes make themselves useful, although perhaps not in the way they are supposed to. This was shown by an incident in a South side home. The mistress of the house happened to go into the kitchen during the evening. There she saw the cook evidently enjoying the company of two big dispensers of the law. "Why, Maggie," she exclaimed, "isn't one policeman enough for you?" "Shure, ma'am, but wan is my chap-eron," answered the cook. "Which one?" queried the lady. "Sometimes the wan and sometimes the other," was the cheery reply from the resourceful Maggie. — Chicago Chronicle.

Go to England to Marry.

Every year from 800 to 1,200 couples go to England from the continent, mostly from Germany, to get married. To comply with the conditions of the English law the bride usually comes over first, stays one night in a hotel and gives notice of the marriage on the following day. Then the man arrives and the ceremony takes place. It is generally by license, as otherwise both would have to be in England for four weeks.

MILK THE ORIGINAL FOOD.

Prof. Osler Tells of the Dietary Needs of Mankind.

Comparing the human body and the steam engine in a lecture, Prof. Osler said one differentiating feature was that while the engine had only one furnace, and a large one, the human body consisted of myriads of little furnaces—that is, cells. Milk was the original food of man. It contained the four things that were necessary as food—fat, curd, sugar and salt—all dissolved in water. Dr. Weir Mitchell once showed him a robust-looking patient, and he remarked: "He looks as if he had been living on the fat of the land." "No," replied Dr. Mitchell, "on the fat of the cow." That patient had a five years' milk diet—except on Sundays, when his wife insisted on rice pudding. If vegetarians would eat their vegetables and say less about it they would do well. Many vegetarians were not as robust mentally as physically. Alcohol was quite unnecessary. If all the beer and spirits could be dumped into the Irish channel and the North sea for a year, people in England would be infinitely better off. "If," he continued, "on the second day you dumped all the tobacco into the sea it would be good for you and hard on the fish."

Hit the Lawyer Hard.

Joseph H. Choate, the famous lawyer and diplomat, said at a lawyers' dinner:

"We lawyers couldn't do better than resolve, on the new year, to be gentler in our cross-examinations. Rudeness in cross-examination never, never pays. This is a truth that I once saw proven in a damage suit."

"In this suit a cross-examining lawyer shouted at a witness in overalls: 'You there in the overalls, how much are you paid for telling untruths?'"

"'Less than you are,' the witness retorted, 'or you'd be in overalls, too.'"

FIRST TO UTILIZE GAS.

Credit Accorded William Murdock, Scottish Mining Engineer.

January 28 was an interesting centenary, that of the first experimental lighting of a street with gas lamps in England, for on that date, 1807, through the exertions of Frederick Albert Winsor, Pall Mall was illuminated with a series of these now familiar sources of light, says the London Globe.

Winsor's work was the development of the earlier experiments and suggestions of William Murdock, a Scottish mining engineer employed in the Redruth mines, Cornwall. Murdock appears to have been the first to suggest that gas might be conveyed in tubes and used instead of lamps and candles. He made a very ingenious gas lantern for himself, with which he used to light his way over the Cornish moors at night. This lantern consisted of a bag filled with gas and fitted with a tube, at the end of which the gas could be lighted.

Carrying the bag under his arm, Murdock used to lighten his way home at night. On meeting any one it is said that he would give the bag a squeeze and thus send out a long tongue of flame. This led to his being looked upon as the demon of the Cornish moors.

MORNING IN THE MOUNTAINS.

Rest and Peace to the Jaded Dweller in the City.

What recollections these thoughts of mornings in the mountains brings us! The soft breeze, laden with the odors of pine and balsam, steals through our open window. The lazy restfulness of doing nothing, if nothing it pleases us to do, or the anxiety for action when action has been decided upon; the healthy, vigorous appetite waiting to be satisfied. Where do we find such mornings except in the mountains? And the evenings—the silent, restful evenings; the body tired, but the mind invigorated by the long tramp over mountains or strenuous work of trout-ing and photographing. And last, but by no means least, those campfires, with our party gathered around within a circle of light, talking over the experiences of the day, singing songs and telling stories. Who that has sat and listened to good stories while watching the climbing flames and smoke of a campfire will ever forget it? Thoughts that are impossible come then. You are carried away and become a part of the story that is being told. But we are in the city, with its noise and bustle! Let us get out of it, and be off for the mountains for two weeks' sweet communion with nature. —Outer's Book.

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat, stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

Ex-Confederate Captain Dead.

Captain Peter Maytubby, an aged and highly respected ex-Confederate captain, died yesterday at his home at Oil Springs near Caddo. He served with distinction in the 1st Choctaw regiment, and was the last captain of that brave company of men to die.

During later years he was connected with the Dawes Commission, and worked all over the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations.

The News is indeed sorry to hear of the brave old man's death, and extends sympathy.

COX-GREER-MCDONALD OLD STAND

HAD HIM DEAD TO RIGHTS.

Circumstantial Evidence Certainly Was Strong in This Case.

"Yes, they call it circumstantial evidence. But she won all right." So said the old gentleman reminiscently to his companion, a younger and much less experienced man. The two men were discussing life in double harness. The younger one was anxious. He felt half afraid. So he consulted his friend, older and far more experienced than he in the matrimonial field. "But how did they prove it?" queried the young man. The older man had been telling him of his own peculiar experience. And he told it in a sad way. "Well," replied the experienced one, "Nell, she stuck a needle in her waist about a year before I got so strong. And that blamed needle kept working around there all the time. I got kinder strong and kept on going. I was there to see her most every night. Finally that blamed needle worked out of my arm and she had me dead to rights. It doesn't pay to get too close to a good thing sometimes."

Why He Bought the Mourners' Bench. "Once we had a revival, and I attended it with my girl. She got quite excited, and before I knew what was happening she started for the mourners' bench. She didn't ask me if I'd go. She just got up and went all by herself. Well, she kneeled next to her was kneelin' a feller she'd been goin' with some and who was a rival o' mine. I said: 'By gosh! I can't stand that! Maybe he'll be ketchin' her.' There was just a little room between her and him, and I stepped up and kneeled so as to separate 'em. I cut him out that time, and he didn't marry that girl. As far as that goes, neither did I. Oh, well, you can't be young but once!"

Jewels of English Women.

Many English society women are the owners of jewels worth the proverbial king's ransom. Perhaps the largest collections belong to the duchess of Portland and the duchess of Marlborough, but Viscountess Iveagh is the possessor of one of the most valuable necklaces in England. Her pearls are worth over $350,000, and took Lord Iveagh a long time to collect. Lady Rothschild, the countess of Dudley, the countess of Annesley and Lady Denman all own most beautiful pearls. The duchess of Roxburgh and the Marchioness of Dufferin both have a large number of turquoises.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

FASHION'S SHRINE

As was predicted, the black and white stripe is first favorite among dress goods, especially when it bears a smooth surface, the black being broken by the white, the white clear. One of the prettiest models in this has a kilted skirt with bands of the stripe cut horizontally, together with a short coat having the wide sleeves and a turned-down collar of embroidered tied with a silk tie.

The wide sleeves are the distinguishing feature of the season, either cut in one with the coat, or put in separately, they appear on every jacket, and, besides these, would note as a most prominent fancy, tassels. These, small and long, depend from tunic and sleeves and hoods and corners of coats. Another fancy is the glaze hose, in black and worn with a white skirt, and again, light and dark grey and dark grey, light biscuit and brown being perhaps the most successful of such combinations.

There is no diminution to the favor being accorded to the blouse and skirt.

A pretty shape of coat rounds from the front to a tail at the back, and there is much attention being paid to the short jacket which has a seam just above the waist and a kilt to reach this.

both is the last seen in an illustration. This is made of dull blue fine cloth, and trimmed with bands of Chinese embroidery, and it bears many masses of mixed colors at the corners.

The dress in the center is of cloth with embroidered lawn collar and cuffs, it might be well achieved in dull pink and crowned with a hat to match, and trimmed with a mass of red roses.

The first picture, which I have, in no spirit of contradiction, but by mere accident, kept to the last, is a full green cloth trimmed with orange and oxidized braid, and I would give it for its best success, crown with a black hat, encircled with green and brown ostrich feathers.

I note that, while the short skirt is a recognized favorite, it is never permitted to do duty on festive occasions, for this, the skirts are not to touch the ground and cling closely round the hips and bear a measure of fulness at the back, a graceful order of affairs.

The Japanese outline remains conspicuous on evening cloaks and traveling cloaks, and tassels are indispen-sible decorations to these, which are, however, invested, with complete indifference to tradition, with a distinct waist-line, the Japanese effect being mainly retained by the shape of the sleeves.

Fashion, indeed, is a tale of sleeves, and the garments of yester-year may at once be distinguished by these; unless, of course, such garments happen to have been the property of the fortunate few who, by always buying in the most expensive markets, often manage to forestall fashion.

away. Old materials, old colors, old ideas may still be used, but they must enter into calculation rather as accessories to be, a combination with new suggestions than as a whole. The spirit of change is abroad in the land, and it makes itself felt nowhere more potently than in dress. We may wear last season's clothes, but not as they were! And to the economically inclined this must be a season of pure delight, for the old things never lent themselves so adaptably to combination as now, and here the popular silks are their salvation. It is the exception when a gown of silk itself is not trimmed with a silk of another weave, or of a different color. Taffetas used rather for ornamental purposes than as entire costumes, except in black, which is as popular as ever.

The majority of silks are figured, yet plain weaves are, strictly speaking, just as good. Satin duchesse, which has been on the market for many seasons, is heralded as a novelty for coat suits, and those of its construction are indeed very smart. For this purpose, both colors and black are in order.

Tuscan, shantung, tussah, rafah, and minge, all are popular for day and evening costumes, for coat suits, for formal or informal occasions, for separate coats or for entire suits. They require but little trimming, drape gracefully, wear well, and altogether possess those qualities which go to make up a satisfactory spring fabric.

How Woman Has Elevated the Stage

By Julia Marlowe.

Actresses in Shakespeare's Time Regarded with Disfavor—Struggles of Famous Actresses to Win Recognition—Mrs. Drew's Triumph as a Manager—Women Inherently Suited for Dramatic Achievement—The Actress Has Advanced the Cause of Women.

(Julia Marlowe, though regarded as an American actress, was born in the lake country of England; she was but a child of four years when her family, removed to a farm in Kansas. At 12 years of age she joined a juvenile "Pittsford" company and soon attracted attention by her clever acting and her rich, clear voice. Other companies followed when she returned from the stage and studied dramatic art for three years. Reappearing, as "Linda" in "Ingomar" at the Bijou theater in New York, she won instant recognition as a splendid actress. Still, she struggled for several years longer with disappointment, for the various kinds before she was accorded the high place on the stage which her merit gave her. In 1874, when she played "Ingomar" at the Bijou, she was the first actress to be introduced to the public by a leading newspaper critic.)

I think few people can realize how fierce has been the strife in regard to women on the stage and how difficult it has been for them to convince the world at large of the importance of their hard-won position and their beneficent influence upon dramatic art. I am speaking now of the past. Happily at the present stage of dramatic development woman's standard is as high and her position as assured as men's.

It was not always so. Looking back on the age of oppression and intolerance when in 1660 woman first appeared in dramatic representations, we find her entrance marked an era in dramatic advancement. The first record of woman's appearance upon the stage is December 6, 1660. The play was Shakespeare's "Othello," and the Desdemona was played by a woman. There has been considerable doubt as to whom this honor belongs. Some have given it to Anne Marshall. The more general supposition is that Margaret Hughes deserves this right to immortality. We have Pepys' authority for it that women appeared in Killigrew's company in London on January 3, 1661, in "Ben Jonson and Fletcher's "Beggars Bush."

Their early appearances were received with great disfavor. Dr. Doran tells us that the writers of the time denounced the first actresses as "unwomanish and graceless"—not meaning that they were ungainly and unfeminine, but that play-acting in itself was below their dignity. "Glad I am to say," remarked Thomas Brand, speaking of these actresses, "that they were hissed, hooted and pippin-pelted from the stage, so that I do not think they will soon be ready to try the same again." He adds that well-disposed people were righteously indignant at these women, whom Pyraene, a rigorous puritan of the time, called "monsters."

Notwithstanding the marked disfavor with which they were first received, reasonable and serious-minded persons could not fail to see the propriety of Juliet and Desdemona being acted by girls rather than boys. It would appear that immediately upon this important progressive step the artistic need for woman's appearance must have been generally felt.

We read that soon afterward actresses were in great demand. It was found that they not only increased the popularity of the theaters in which they performed, but that their cooperation was indispensable to the proper presentation of any play. They made possible a fulness and a beauty of interpretation which had not been dreamed of before.

Take for a single example, the women of Shakespeare. They stand as vivid types of truth and beauty. They are so alive with the warmth of femininity that their expression by other than women is in itself a monstrous sacrilege. A play performed by men can hardly be imagined to-day and the wonder is that such an absurdity ever existed.

The realization of the necessity of woman's cooperation with man in dramatic achievement grew rapidly, for men's minds were at this time too highly susceptible to advancement to remain in ignorance of this need. So it was not long before actresses were recognized and highly respected. This was so true in the case of Mrs. Betterton that when in 1674 "Callista" was performed at court the actress was chosen as mistress to the princesses Mary and Anne, and much of the subsequent graceful elocution and dignity of bearing of these ladies was accredited to Mrs. Betterton. Perhaps no finer compliment was ever paid to a woman in any walk of life than she received, for we read of her that in company with her distinguished husband she made her home the abiding place of "charity, hospitality and dignity."

What a vast work has been accomplished by women in the drama since then, and what a lasting monument of art she has reared for herself in the annals of the stage! To those whose souls are filled with sacred reverence for creative genius what wealth of delight in looking back upon the dazzling record of the theater when the achievements of Mrs. Betterton, Nell Gwynne, Margaret Woffington, Nance Oldfield, Sarah Siddons, and more lately, Rachel Ristori, Fanny Kemble, Charlotte Cushman, Helen Faucit, Adelaide Neilson, and a host of others stand forth as irrefutable proofs of the dignity and importance of woman's work along the lines of truly artistic advancement.

As an evidence of her serious devotion to this art in particular, and as proof that it has absorbed her very being as no other calling ever has done one has but to offer the annals of the stage. With woman the stage has not been a fancy, nor in its higher walks even a medium for the mere gratification of her vanity. It has been and is a life devotion, an art in which she has given her best intellectual and emotional self.

Courage and perseverance have been woman's battle cry since the year 1660. What greater instance of these qualities is to be found in all history than the grim, sad experience of the great Rachel, who when a wretched child traveled in poverty, equaling and cold from one small European town to another, and who in order to possess a copy of Racine's plays was obliged, through trudging through mud and rain, to pawn her umbrella for the pitiful sum of 20 sous.

The history of Charlotte Cushman is too well known to make a review of her untiring perseverance necessary. The heart-rending episodes of her life when poor the supporting of others lacking beauty and charm, she strove to influence managers to give her the opportunity of expressing the genius she felt burning within her, form one of the most stirring chapters in the history of womanhood. Consider, too, the life of Mrs. Lander, who besides her valuable services in the dramatic field, took upon herself the entire charge of the hospital department of Port Royal, S. C. She lives in memory to us as the blessed name of Florence Nightingale does to the English.

It is unnecessary to go back in the history of the stage for such examples. We have them near at hand. The struggles of Mme. Modjeska and of Miss Clara Morris and their final and lasting artistic victories are well known to all who have watched with interest and sympathy the lives of artists on the stage.

It is often stated that woman is lacking in the faculty of creative genius, and, indeed, that in this particular, by contrast with man, she is decidedly inferior. This is perhaps a reasonable conclusion in view of her history. But it is not so emphatically true when we consider her dramatic work.

It is, by no means a new thought that man is by nature more intellectual and woman by nature more emotional. Of course, it is not meant by this that man is never emotional, nor woman never intellectual. Yet it is surely fair to assume that to man belongs the power of intellectuality, and to woman the emotional quality. Does it not seem, therefore, that the very possession by nature of this latter quality, which certainly is an absolute necessity in dramatic art, has made her inherently suited for dramatic achievement?

Mr. Ruskin, in speaking of the necessary qualities that go to form great artists, says: "First, sensibility and tenderness; second, imagination, and third, industry." Woman's nature is peculiarly alive to all of these conditions. It is then no wonder that women on the stage have accomplished great things and will accomplish greater things in the future, when such women as Modjeska, Terry, Duse and the matchless Bernhardt continue through inspiration to show their genius to the world.

Woman's work in literature with few exceptions has been denied any claim to greatness. In music and in other arts she is admitted to have shown no particular creative power. But her place upon the stage is as absolutely unquestioned as man's. In having thus secured for herself an eminent position in the drama the actress has advanced the whole cause of woman, since every individual triumph raises the estimation in which the intellectual achievements of a whole class are held. Woman is better understood because she has been faithfully portrayed. She is more highly regarded because of her ability to make that portrayal. And that portrayal has, I feel, a powerful moral influence in an educational sense.

I thoroughly believe that it is the duty of mothers to foster in the hearts of their children while at a tender age a serious consideration for the better forms of dramatic literature and of dramatic representation. Let them teach their children to avoid the unhappy tendency of the present age which regards acting merely as a form of amusement rather than an amusement combining a means for intellectual control and artistic suggestion, presented in an attractive and inspiring manner.

That woman is capable of arduous effort and untiring devotion has been fully demonstrated by her work on the stage. She has helped to elevate the drama to its rightful place among the educational forces of life. She has done to make true what Morley says: "At the playhouse door, then, we may say to the doubting, enter boldly, for here, too, are the gods."

BIG BROOCH IS ALL THE GO.

Style of Two Generations Ago Is Back in Favor.

Big brooches are all the go—really big ones, such as were worn two generations ago; only, with the exception of the cameo pins, they are more gorgeous affairs. The modern big brooch gleams and sparkles or is a sheet of vivid color. There is nothing demure about it—it is a striking, effective ornament.

Most of the big pins hold a single semi-precious stone. The stone makes the brooch, for the setting is simply a narrow rim about it. Transparent stones are not, as a rule, backed with setting, as this detracts from their appearance.

Amethyst and topaz seem to outnumber other transparent stones used for these big brooches, such as garnet, peridot, aqua-marine, etc. Well-cut topaz pins gleam like living fire, the amethyst pins glow with a more subdued light.

Alsatian Bows.

One of the most fashionable accessories to bridesmaids' costumes at present are the Alsatian bows for the hair. These are especially suitable for young girls, either for the occasions of weddings or for evening functions. They are exceedingly dashing in appearance and yet very simple, and are much more becoming to young girls than feather or aigrette ornaments, while they are also newer though not more becoming than the leaf or flower wreaths.

The bow goes directly in front of a twisted piece of the material going around the high coiffure as a snood. The bows may be made either of gauze sprinkled with crystals, gold spangles, etc., of liberty satin or velvet to match or contrast with the costume, or of cloth of gold or silver. The bows are quite large and very jaunty.

Tips on Neck of Waist.

Here's a point about the neck. The width of the back between the shoulder seams should equal in width that of one of the front portions of the blouse between the shoulder seam and the front of the neck. All told, the back should be divided into exactly three equal parts, one for each side front and one for the back. A back that does not measure exactly the width of one side front is too narrow and the neck will neither fit properly nor comfortably. The shoulder seam should always remain straight at the neckband. If it needs to be moved, the alteration must only be made toward the back or toward the front at the armhole.

The simplest face bleach known is almond milk, and is good if constantly used. Blanch 30 large almonds. Break into a small basin and put in a lump of sugar. Take a wooden potato masher (not a wire or metal one) and break the almonds and sugar, then slowly, almost drop by drop, add a half pint of rose water. The process is a long one and must be carefully done, the object being to break the almonds as fine as dust. Let stand over night, then strain through muslin cloth. Use the "milk" morning and night, letting it dry on the face.

donnas. Even American women who master the grace of walking well in their youth seem to lose it in old age. Watch an old woman walking, in nine cases out of ten she is flat-footed and ungainly, and we should do every thing that is possible to make old age come. We dress better than we did, we know better what suits us, and how to put on our clothes properly, which is half the battle.

But there will be many dissentients to this, there are, but few very graceful women, and the increased height in the majority of our sex does not tend that way. We are much too angular, and too downright in our movements. The modern school girl indulges in games much on the same lines as her brothers, to the great improvement of her health and her physique; but when the school days are over there is not that due cultivation of grace which would add so materially to womanly charms. Note the swinging gait of well-dressed women in the streets, the movement of the arms accompanying the movements of the body, the lack of repose, and far too often the lack of dignity.

Parents with children should realize Ruskin's injunctions, that the first duty owing to women is to secure a training which shall confirm their health and perfect their beauty.

We rarely realize the ideal Greek beauty, and yet they were a long-lived race, and we probably should add to our length of days if we followed in their footsteps.

There are plenty of paraffin lamps for home gymnastics, which should be set up in our bedrooms and used judiciously daily; but simple exercises without anything will do wonders, and keep the body well toned and assure grace of deportment. Some exercises should be carried out every morning, either before or after the daily bath; if the bath be a hot one before, for fear of chills, and before, of course, the corsets are put on.

NOURISHMENT FOR THE BABY.

Neither Milk Nor Solid Food Should Be Forced or Urged.

Do not at any time force or urge milk or solid food upon the child; if he should refuse part or the whole of a feeding, let that meal go, and do not give any food until the next feeding hour comes.

For the first 24 hours after birth very little food is necessary; feed the infant about once in five hours. If it is possible, the baby should be nursed by the mother, as the nourishment it receives from her contains certain ingredients which are necessary to cleanse the stomach and intestinal tract of the newly-born, as well as to stimulate the digestive juices to activity. If for some good reason it is not possible for the mother to nurse her child, give as a substitute a little boiled water slightly sweetened or thin gruel dextrinized. After the first 36 hours milk can be given in a dilute form. Cow's milk can be diluted, plain, or in the form of top milk. The diluent should be thin gruel or boiled water.—Harper's Bazar.

Dolly Varden Hats.

Morning hats are extremely simple. The Dolly Varden is perhaps one of the most becoming novelties, and its simplicity makes its charm even more apparent, says the American Register. Ribbons will be largely used for morning and country millinery, and the full ruche for girls' hats will be revived in tulle and lace silks.

IN DOTTED SWISS MUSLIN.

Daisy Apron Ornamented with Colored Embroidery Silk.

Dotted swiss muslin is the material used in making this apron. Quantity necessary is a piece 33 inches long by 30 inches wide. The hem on each side is 1 1/2 inches wide. At the bottom is 2 1/2 inches wide. Yellow embroidery silk is used for feather stitching the hem. The three rows of embroidery across the bottom represent ox-eyed daisies. Yellow silk to be used for the petals, each petal having four stitches, the two center ones being a little longer than the one on each side. Brown embroidery silk is used for the center of the daisies, these being French knots. The top of the apron is turned over 2 1/2 inches and has four rows of shirring. On the wrong side of the shirring sew a piece of plain muslin, so the threads won't break. Sew yellow satin ribbon on the right-hand side for the belt.
